TODAY IS OURS . . .

"Oh say can you see by the dawn's early light . . ." Francis Scott Key probably had little insight as to the effect these inspiring words would have within the realms of our national history.

The sun's glistening rays have dawned and set countless times since Key penned these unforgettable lines, but with the dawn of each day we must be reminded that TODAY IS OURS!

Each twenty-four hours that a person lives is a gift. So often students get so caught up in papers, exams and projects that the rest of life seems to rush by in a blur. Students need time to stop and interact with the world around them.

TODAY IS OURS and we should make the most of every moment. For once the day is over, it is gone forever.

If time could be saved, would the reminiscence be as fulfilling as the living? Probably not! However, the collegiate years generate memories that will last a lifetime.

Memories are a lot like old faded blue jeans—you wear them until they are almost completely worn out, but somehow you can not find it in your heart to do away with them.

Memories are good because of what they represent, but sometimes students enter college with nothing more than a file of fond memories.

It has also been said that memories are remembered sweeter than the event that took place. If all of the todays are filled with memories of yesterday, then what will we carry through all of the tomorrows?

Tomorrow—the student's greatest hope is for tomorrow. "If only tomorrow would hurry and get here."
Students spend daylight hours wishing for weekends, the year is spent looking forward to the next, until finally waiting for graduation!

With Graduation comes the great expediency of launching into a career. Only a couple years into the career world, and the thoughts of retirement begin trying to break through the corridors of the mind. Tomorrow—always a day away!

YESTERDAY, TODAY AND TOMORROW, BUT ONLY TODAY IS OURS!

Today is ours, but what do we do with it? What is today only why? Today is a new beginning's chance to succeed in yesterday's dream. It is a chance to make memories to carry into tomorrow. But most of all it is now.

A TIME TO MAKE FRIENDS

Dear Friend,

So often I forget to tell you just how much being called "your friend" means to me. I consider the greatest "extra" that college has afforded me is the chance to make friends; friends like you.

No amount of money could replace the great times we shared. Do you remember orientation week? I was so lonely that the day in dorms, I didn't have anyone to identify with. Then you came and sat down at the dinner table. Isn't it funny how it took ten minutes before either one of us spoke? Then after talking we discovered that even though we lived miles apart we shared some of the same friends!

Football season—that was some celebration after that first win. What about all the "all-nighters" we pulled studying for tests? Maybe it was the pressure, maybe it was the lack of sleep, maybe it was just to kill time—but it seemed as though we always ended up in a deep philosophical discussion!

Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays were great, but I was anxious to get back and hear all the "news"—snow, heavy snow! I wonder if the "some-time" ever realized the shortage of trays during the snow? If we only had food trays instead of sleds as children, it would have been twice the fun growing up!

After mid-terms everything began to fly by. Spring break, the hay-ride and bacchanal down at the river—Spring Jubilee and now graduation.

Fun year wasn't it?

I guess I said all of that to say this . . . Having you as a friend made all of the events—fun! It's nice to know that there are people with whom I can be myself. Thanks for being there to listen and for caring. Thanks for confiding in me; sharing your burdens opened new insights to me. Thank you!

Thank you for being my friend!

With Love,
Your Friend

A Time To Learn

somewhere amidst the diverse amusements and camaraderies of college life there must be a time for study. A time for enrichment. A time in which the student not only fulfils the requirements of his major, but also explores the fulfillment of his inner being. The curriculum is a vast summary of these ways of learning, but there is more to study than Old Testament and English Composition 101. The curriculum of a college student is not only four years of education, but also an introduction to a future career. It is past knowledge taught in the present to be used in the future.

DOING IT RIGHT THIS TIME!

One of the best football teams in GWC's history emerged this year. The goal of the team was to be the champions of the NAIA division. The 1982 season looked great for the Bulldogs. After six straight wins the teams was on its ways. They were ranked in the top ten teams of their division in the nation. Tom Moore has now fulfilled the promises he had made four years ago, when he said he was going to make a great football team for GWC. The players were very supportive and while the fans only saw the team on the field once a week, the players were out there almost everyday preparing for the next game. The coaches spent many hours weekly preparing the strategy for the next game. The support of the fans and cheerleaders helped keep the spirit and morale of the players from going down. The discipline and spirit that has gone into this year's football team has made the GWC bulldogs champions.

Senior players, the backbone of the Gardner-Webb football team, are among the many people who have remained dedicated to the Bulldogs through their years of revitalizing the Bulldog team. The senior players have worked hard from year to year; while other players transferred because they were not pleased with the season, this outstanding group of guys stuck with it until it paid off. These senior players have shown an expression of dedication which will stick with the team for many years to come. They have stood by the team during the good and bad times which produced the first winning season since 1977.

1. With O'Shea, Dixon and Walls poised, the Bulldog Defensive line is ready for action
2. Walls arrives a little late as Gary Dixon has already made the tackle

The tension mounts. The seconds tick off the clock. The blaring lights of the scoreboard read Lenoir-Rhyne—24, Gardner-Webb—21. Hundreds of Bulldog fans sit on the edge of their seats. Fourth down—Gardner-Webb has the ball. The Quarterback thrusts the ball—into the air—the pass is good—A touchdown! Splashes of red set the stadium on fire. The dull hum of human voices increases to a steady roar as the ball flies through the posts. Fans rise to their feet shouting, cheering, and clapping. This is spirit. This makes the pain worthwhile.

HOMECOMING "1982" TO GOOD TO TURN BACK NOW

Students turned out in surprising numbers for Homecoming this year. The anticipation of a rough game was evident. By half-time the Bulldogs were in the lead. Excitement mounted as the homecoming attendants and queen were presented.

After a fired-up pep talk in the locker room, the team returned to the field. They gave it their best shot and we were proud of them. We love ya, Bulldogs!

BULLDOGS, THAT AWESOME FORCE

The 1982-1983 Bulldog basketball team has made their mark in GWC history. The team gave all their strength in making this year a winning season. The team also made a great side in winning the 1982 WDTV Carolina Classic.

Head coach Jim Wiles and coach Tommy Gaither worked hard in producing one of the best basketball teams Gardner-Webb has ever seen. The team and coaches put numerous hours of hard work into making this year a season. The players were united in a spirit of good sportsmanship, brotherhood, and pride. With these qualities the team made the 82-83 season a great year. The gleam for victory and fair play was seen in every player's eyes as well as in their actions on the court. The team not only played a wonderful season but they also got to make the first season of basketball in the new Paul Porter Arena a season to remember.

DOGS TAKE CLASSIC FOR THE 5TH TIME

WBTU CAROLINA CLASSIC

The Gardner-Webb basketball team has proven their superiority in the WBTU Carolina Classic. The Fighting Bulldogs defeated Barber-Scola, Johnson C. Smith, Pfeiffer College, and then defeated Limestone College to win the tournament championship. Eddie Wilkins was named the most valuable player of the tournament and Terry Camp was named All-Tournament, both of these awards were well deserved. They proved to many fans the might of the GWC basketball team. The aid of the many cheering Bulldog fans and the super school spirit also helped in the winning of the fifth title as the WBTU Carolina Classic Champions.

Women's Basketball

The 1982-1983 women's basketball team played another great season. They met their opponents and challenged them all, to a great game of basketball. This year will always be remembered as a good year in women's basketball. And when the word basketball is mentioned at GWC one will never forget the great women's basketball team.

Golf

1 L-R Lane Pace, Dewey Oxner, Coach Allen, John Vaughn, Brian Burgess, Jimmy Busker, Wesley Murdock

The golf team of Gardner-Webb has always been an outstanding and competitive team. The team, led by Coach Allen has in the past won two national championships and the NAIN district title six times. Coach Allen and the golf team have worked very hard in making this season great. The team's great enthusiasm and strength has made them an outstanding team. The golf team has shown their GWC pride and spirit in every game they played.

THE PACK IS OFF AND RUNNING

Cross Country Team

The Gardner-Webb cross country team was outstanding in the 82-83 season. The team endured much pain and hard work in putting together a great team for GWC. The team worked hard and in the end, they were rewarded with much success. Gardner-Webb is very proud of the cross country team and the efforts they put forth to win.

STUDENT LIFE

COMMENCEMENT '82:

Commencement exercises were especially "special" for the graduating class of 1982, the first students to graduate in the deaf program received their degrees. There was rumor that this might be the last class to graduate on the lawn, due to the opening of the Lutz-Yelton Convocation Center, but this will not be necessary except in event of rain.

A RED LETTER DAY

FINALLY OFF TO COLLEGE

Freshman and transfer students experienced a vigorous week of orientation during the last week of August. However, after talking with a lot of the new students they felt that it helped them adjust to the new atmosphere, college and most of all to each other. By the end of orientation the students could hardly wait for classes to begin.

Leadership

The collegiate years should provide a well rounded education outside of the classroom as well as within the classroom. One field that students may gain experience in is leadership. Entrance into these clubs may be by student election or appointment.

The SGA OFFICERS and Senate have the awesome responsibility of co-ordinating student by-laws and policies.

The vice presidents of each club which serve as members of the Inter-Club Council have just as difficult undertaking in correlating diverse organizational functions.

Members of the Student Center Board learned a new meaning for the word "responsibility". Trying to keep students active and on the move proved to be almost impossible.

The Association of Women Students and the Ambassadors are service organizations in addition to being chances for students to learn leadership.

Religion

Although this is a Baptist College, many students feel the need to get more involved in religious activities on campus and most have no problem in finding a place to fit in. The opportunities are many, including the various organizations under the guidance of the Baptist Student Union. There is the Baptist Young Women and Mission Fellowship for those interested in missions and mission work, as well as the Fellowship of Christian Athletes with both its athletic and non-athletic members meeting to discuss and encourage each other in Christian growth. Both the Religious Education Club and Ministerial Alliance provide information and support for those interested in a career in church work. These clubs allow each student to use whatever talent they might have, however the Lord leads them.

Publications

One of the rights guaranteed by our constitution is Freedom of the Press, students have opportunities to assist in producing three publications—The Pilot, Reflections and The Web. Just reorganized this year, The Pilot, aims to keep students informed of current events on campus. This newspaper proves to be a vital asset to the Student body. Reflections, edited by Amy J. Wilson allows writer's on campus and in the community to have their work published, the right start for a literary career.

To most this book holds memories of school days at GWC. To the yearbook staffer it brings memories of this and much more. It brings memories of sacrificed study hours and free time, fragile nerves and frenzied deadlines. Much more than this, we remember the feeling of satisfaction upon finishing an assignment, working together and helping each other and the close friendship bonds that have developed. We remember going to Godfather's Pizzeria to celebrate our first deadline. We remember singing carols around the piano at our Christmas party. We remember when we all met at our first meeting . . . and we look at how close we've grown since then.

PRESIDENT CRAVEN E. WILLIAMS

Dr. Craven Edward Williams. Here is a man with a great deal of responsibility, yet he still maintains his sense of humor. This man touches the lives of every person here. To Dr. Williams, this is an ultimate challenge to everyday be the best he can be, and by touching our lives, help us become the best we can become. To Dr. Williams, a main objective of being here with us is to serve us through his leadership of the college. His doors are always open to students, administration and faculty. He dedicates himself to raising standards in every aspect of college life, not only by the physical improvements that have taken place on campus, but by the academic and spiritual uplifting he brings to us. He is the substance holding everything together in this place, and the hand that reaches out to pick us up if we falter. Dr. Craven E. Williams is not just "The President"; but a friendly, caring, smiling man who is involved in this college, and cared for greatly.

Vice-President for Academic Affairs is the title given to John R. Drayer, but in his official capacity, he is usually called the "Dean." Dr. Drayer came to Gardner-Webb in 1973 because he believes he owes Baptists a great debt for his education. In his position as Vice-President, Drayer is responsible for the development of educational policies, the administration of the academic program, the coordination and implementation of the curriculum and instructional programs. Besides being the Vice-President, he is also an Associate Professor of Religion. He chose education as a career because he found fulfillment in school as a student, and he always admired his teachers.

VICE-PRESIDENT FOR BUSINESS AND FINANCE BARRY HARTIS

---

Barry Hartis is the man responsible for all fiscal and business management associated with the college. The title of Vice-President for Business and Finance fits him very well because Mr. Hartis has always had a natural interest in accounting. He always wanted to work in accounting and in a college-type atmosphere, so he happily accepted the job at Gardner-Webb when it was offered to him. He would like the students of Gardner-Webb to perceive him as a friend. He feels this is very important for all administrators so that they may perform the best job possible. In conclusion, Mr. Hartis says, "Being called a friend by the students is the highest compliment an administrator can be paid."

To most people karate, meaning empty hands, is just a word but to Dr. Allen Queen it is a way of life. To most students, he is the head of the education department, but to some, he has become known as "the karate instructor"

Dr. Queen began taking karate in the ninth grade and continued through high school. He attended college at Western Carolina where he continued taking lessons and after three and half years, became karate instructor there. He has been teaching karate since 1972, but didn't begin teaching here until 1978.

To most people, karate is a form of self-defense, but to the karate teacher and students, it is an art. "The common man only uses twenty to thirty percent of his power in self-defense," says Dr. Queen, "But in karate a student is taught to use one hundred percent of his power." This includes learning to control your physical body, breathing, and mind. Dr. Queen says, "Taking karate in order to just learn self-defense without taking advantage of the mental or breathing aspects is like taking painting classes to learn to hold the brush without ever learning to paint."

Although Dr. Queen is not teaching karate now, he still works out every morning and evening. Dr. Queen does not see karate as an art that teaches self-discipline, but as an art that teaches "discipline of self."

Dr. Alice Cullinan
Associate Professor, Religious Education, Religion

Work doesn't have to be drudgery, or least it isn't for Dr. Alice Cullinan, professor of Religion and Religious Education. Dr. Cullinan enjoys her job of teaching today as much as she did when she first started. She has found teaching to be her "little niche" in life and always gives her full efforts to seeing that her students learn. She takes an interest in the individual student far beyond the classroom. In her eyes, she has not succeeded in her job if students only learn concepts, she wants to give them knowledge that will be beneficial to them in their future endeavors, as well as helpful for their personal lives today. As a result, she often offers her services as a counselor to help students deal with problems. Her advice to students is to "have a well-balanced life now—spiritually, socially, and academically. You will be what you are becoming now." In her spare time, Dr. Cullinan likes to do garden work, play the piano, listen to music, and play tennis. Whether on or off the job, her sincerity and compassion reveal a person worth getting to know.

DEPARTMENT OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

"Let's call this person out of the dust bin in order to question his motives," says Dr. Gilmer Blackburn. This statement probably doesn't mean anything to you unless you have been fortunate enough to have Dr. Blackburn as a history professor who introduced you to "the dialogue." This is an attempt to involve the student with history," says Dr. Blackburn. This technique of teaching is the result of a lot of ideas and a genuine concern to make history interesting. Dr. Blackburn hopes to give the students a chance to see how history really occurred. For this reason, Dr. Blackburn tries to pick students who are not only willing to participate but also will study the material provided for them in order to present a true drama to the class. Dr. Blackburn is not above passing agrators in class in order to "hear up" the action. Agrators are used to rebut arguments to help give the students a sense of actuality. For a small time, the student participating is the instructor taking the responsibility to inform the class on a certain type of situation. To sum it up in a quote, Steve San said, "As a student and participant, history comes alive because they (students) have already interacted, causing them to see history as it probably happened."

Dr. Blackburn listens sharply to a student doing a dialogue, and waits to challenge her knowledge of the subject.

DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL SCIENCES

Among today's professors at Garner-Webb, there is perhaps none quite so enthusiastic as Assistant Professor of Biology, Dr. Stephen Pruett. In his teaching, Dr. Pruett shows competence as well as exuberance, and desires to give his students an appreciation of science to carry with them the rest of their lives. This interest in people, students especially, led him to teaching rather than working with the experimental aspect of science. In fact, he was drawn to Garner-Webb this year because of the emphasis on individual students and the interest in giving them a well-rounded education. He considers his job here as an accomplishment and enjoys it to the fullest. Outside of class, Dr. Pruett likes waterskiing, camping, photography, and playing with his new home computer. No matter what he's doing, this devoted, young man radiates a contentment with life seen in very few others.

This is a prime example of malnutrition.

The Class of '83

I was the senior who was so close to that diploma and yet so far from achieving my goals.

I always said to myself after graduation life begins

But I am living now not merely existing or surviving
But actually living

Where did all the time go?

Just yesterday I was a freshman on this campus.

Now in just a few short months

I will leave this place

Always changing—nothing ever remains the same

What comes next?

Graduate school, seminary, marriage, career

I'm standing at the crossroads

Wishing someone would point me in the right direction.

The adult in me baldly
laughs at fear,

I am ready for this new life

The child in me whispers softly

I don't want to leave—can't I stay?

And yet I realize I've spent these past four years in training

In preparation of my coming voyage

Effort has not been wasted

I have learned

I have grown.

I have touched and been touched

I have enjoyed the day, for
it is mine

To thee, our hope, our joy, our pride

With our hands we will serve thee,
Gardner-Webb, our college fair,
In our love we will uphold thee,
Our wealth we'll gladly share

(Chorus)

Alma Mater, Alma Mater,

We sing our love to thee,

We pledge our hearts in deep devotion.

Our love, our faith, eternally

THE CLASS OF '84

I was the Junior who began the year with a whole new perspective

At last I am really delving into my major

My future seems tangible—almost within my grasp.

I have become a habitué of this place

Looking back I can see how much I have matured

Looking ahead I can see the distance yet to go.

But what of today?

Today is for me for my enrichment, for my progress, for my enlightenment.

Today is in preparation for tomorrow

But why must I always look ahead?

My worries of yesterday
seem ridiculous,

My concerns of today—
irrelevant,

What of marriage—a family—a career

Sometimes I think it is to laugh

I put those thoughts out of my mind—I must remain sane

And yet they sit on my mind-shelf for me to toy around with on rainy days.

I ponder—I have become quite a philosopher—

This time, this year is supposed to be my roughest

Yet I am overcoming and I am confident—sometimes

but this school

this is home where I love and am loved

I am accepted

How will I function when I am totally independent—on my own?

Will I make it?

Oh, enjoy today—for only
it is mine

Sophomore Class Officers: Vice-President Gaye Whitener, President, Nancy Perry, Sec-Treas., Jill Foster. Right: Friends enjoy a spare moment after a long hard day of classes. Below: "Please don't start without me!" Rita Bridges looks so enthused.

I was the Sophomore who returned to school from summer break as one returns to reality from a misty dream—summer activities dim and shorter a new chapter of my life unfolds.

I realize how much I've missed this place, this school, this home,

I search among the faces for the comrades of last year.

I am comforted by the familiarity

No surprises

I know the routines well

Feelings of satisfaction overwhelm me

I am a sophomore

I have survived.

Oh the joy of an upperclassman dorm!

Embracing my roommate, the gossip, the new year,

Oh ecstasy of Life!

And yet the studies—

I had forgotten the struggle of learning

Long nights in the library, term papers!

And as if to inflict more torture upon myself

I decide to change my major.

I am so confused—

Will I ever know what field I should enter?

What if this new major is wrong?

Am I running out of time?

or perhaps I'm just running,

Responsibilities weigh heavy on my heart

Why do I struggle to live in tomorrow

when only today is mine?

The Class of '86

I was the Freshman who timidly entered the dorm as a child enters the world

Full of anticipation and smocked into reality

The initial shock over, my eyes widened in wonder at the vibrant commotion around me

The collage of human life Voices raised as one cheering as the ball crossed the line

Scoreboard lights:
Home—7 Visitor—0

My very first college football game.

My ears strained to hear the blaring beat of dancing couples.

The hollow echoes of glass shattering above the din of dinner conversation

The gentle flowing signs of the deaf

My heart reached out in lost loneliness to my family back home, in kindred spirit to my fellow freshman, in aspiring awe to the Agape love of my Father.

And just when I thought I could comprehend, I could confront with this new life

I was thrown into chaos—
my first week of class

There were places to be,
schedules—times—
assignments—deadlines—study!

Somewhere in-between there must be rest, sleep,
peace, blessed free time, Jokes of "freshman burnout" become reality

I am sinking in a whirlpool of mass confusion.

Yet in the midst of all insanity I find comfort in my independence

A sense of belonging floods my inner being

There is so much to live for So much I have yet to discover

Time moves quickly

But for now—the day is mine.

PROLOGUE

A TIME TO WORSHIP

Admits hectic class schedules, study sessions, recreation and "good ol'" times, tedious work, "almighties", trips to "Quis Snads", and various other time-demanding "obligations", how does a student manage to focus on someone or something besides himself? Impossible as it may seem, a time can be found to worship God, even on a college campus. Worship opportunities are available to students in all forms of settings. Wednesday night "Vespers" in Dover Chapel offer a breath to lead students in uplifting and provoking services that provide a boost for the remainder of the week. The informality of students leading students has proved meaningful on many occasions. College Family Worship combines the talents of faculty, administrators, and students to offer up praise in a close-knit atmosphere that helps unify the college campus.

The Baptist Student Union (BSU) provides varied facets of worship. BSU Club meetings serve of creative and fun times that involve participation of all to share and testify to their love for Christ. The BSU also sponsors FOGUB teams for members to share their faith on campus with churches in living settings. Students have an opportunity to join, as well as actively participate, in these worship services. A more personal form of spiritual "hearing" is offered by Deaf-Jewish groups. One-on-one students can relate their spiritual knowledge, for guidance, from through practical experiences on their own level. The concern and encouragement students show to each other on a day-to-day basis through all situations emphatically their reverence for God. (Regardless of the form, worship occurs on day and all times on Griner Webb campus.

A TIME TO LAUGH

There comes a time during the day when you need a break. You need some time to stop being serious and to let yourself go. You want to do something different—something crazy and absurd which is totally not normal, comprehensible. How do students seek such a cathartic behavior? Well, sometimes loud laughter is the best medicine to cure the so-called blues.

Your day began when your alarm went off at 7:50 a.m.—just 5 minutes before your 8:00 class. The rest of your night went as well as the morning. You failed a test, dropped your tray down the burrito-walk and locked your key in the dorm room. In a fit of frustration you scream, "I give up!" and are enough to drop dead in a collapse.

You begin to feel sorry for yourself and sulkingly, you bring yourself to the library to do your algebra homework. When you return to your room, you discover it has been riddled with paper, your bed shorts are wet and your undies have been hanging for the window. Suddenly you begin to laugh uncontrollably. These wonderful friends of yours wanted to cheer you up—and they succeeded.

The hilarity of the moment made you stop feeling sorry for yourself. You feel better after the laughs and knowing someone cares enough to help you through the hardships. Today you can smile and let it carry you through the days ahead knowing that you will carry the laughter in your heart—always.

A TIME TO MEDITATE . . .

It is said that man is in constant need of spiritual rejuvenation. One must have a time of meditation in order to be fully aware of one's purpose and position in life. The healthy spirit must work as a pendulum: swinging out to be alone and receive nourishment and strength; swinging in to share that strength and uphold others. "For it is only in giving that we receive." Take the time to be alone with yourself and feel your spirit breathe a sigh of contentment. Think about the beauty around you and marvel at God's greatness. Recognize the simplicity of a tree and be renewed. Cry with the birds as they leave the nest. Laugh in the presence of the child-like squirrels. Look to the sky and REACH UP. Reach up for the warmth of the sunshine and the cleansing of the rain and smile as God smiles on you.

A TIME FOR THE EDITOR . . .

Today is ours . . . This is a true statement, but the editor needs tomorrow too! There have been times this year when the book which you now hold was only a burden. This book is the result of problems, arguments, forsaken studies and a sacrifice of free time.

Somehow all these bad times don't seem so awful after all. The reality of this "history book" seems to have brightened the memory corridors. Now all that is remembered are the hilarious moments and the new friendships gained through the production of this yearbook.

Now comes the most difficult part—the "thank you's". I hope that no one is left out because there are so many, but here goes: Dave Robertson, Barbara Davis, Kay Sramey, John Mark Adams, Debbie Lynn, Burch Dillingham, Sheila Painter and Susan Hall. All of these people have worked directly with me in carrying out editorial responsibilities. These people tried to keep me straight!

A very special thanks to Glenn Cooper and Garland Davis for judging the photo contest. Also, to Sandro Smith for her help and cooperation. It is my prayer that as you look back through THE WEB—1983, you will remember with fond memories Gardner-Webb College and the God and ideals it stands for.
